

TOULOUSE

Pierre Cressac (Creysac & Creissac)[dit Toulouse], born 19 April 1714 in Toulouse, died 26 February 1791 at St.François, Beauce, was the first-born son of Pierre Cressac and Catherine Subra [dite Subrane] of the cathedral-parish of St.Étienne, city of Toulouse, modern department of Haute-Garonne, ancient province of Languedoc, France, first married at Petkoudiac (Petitcoudiac), Acadia (presently Hillsborough, NB) on 13 April 1755 to Anne Comeau, born circa 1730, died 1757 in PQ, and widow of Joseph Levron. Pierre married a second time in 1759 (probably in Acadia, Miramichi region) to Marie-Catherine Vincent, born 29 May 1740 at Petitcoudiac in Acadia, died 5 January 1822 at St.François, Beauce. Pierre was baptized on 24 April 1714 at the cathedral of St.Étienne in Toulouse. His father, born in 1687-8, was a cook by profession. Catherine Subra was born on 20 March 1685 in Toulouse, the widow of Arnaud Ferrère and the daughter of Jean-Thomas Subra, a fisherman, and Domenge Paillac. His grandfather, Guillaume was a native of the town of Gémil. Pierre and Catherine Vincent had 12 children of which two sons, Pierre and Charles, were twins. Pierre had only Marie (#2) by his first marriage. Pierre arrived in Québec city on 23 August 1750 on the ship "Madame Infante Victoire." He was 35 years old. As a soldier in the company of Contrecoeur, he was assigned to the military garrison at Fort de Beauséjour located in New Brunswick across the river from Ft. Lawrence, Nova Scotia . The town of Gémil, France is located 18 km. (11 miles) northeast of Toulouse.
